doubts as to the validity in England of such unions.

There was a large attendance at the Royal Colonial Institute, on April 26, to hear the Bishop of Melbourne's paper on the progress of Victoria. The essay was highly instructive, and interesting; the Bishop lamented the adoption of a protective policy and system of secular education, upon which points there ensued a lengthened discussion. The warmest testimony was borne by speakers to the valuable large-hearted conduct of the Bishop while in the colony, and most of the evils from which Victoria is now suffering were traced to the absence of educated leisurely men of high character, who could devote their time and talents to public affairs.

In the election for North Norfolk, Colonel Duff, Conservative candidate, was returned by a majority of 110 over Sir Thomas Powell Buxton, Liberal; in East Cumberland, Mr. Stafford Howard, Liberal, defeated Sir R. Musgrave, Conservative, by 150 votes; in West Aberdeenshire, Lord Douglas Gordon, Liberal, defeated Colonel Innes, Conservative, by 1530 votes.

On the reassembling of the Lords after the Easter recess, the Royal assent was given by commission to the Royal Titles Bill.

In the Commons on the 27th April, an animated discussion arose on the question whether another opportunity should not be given to the House to consider the new title. The Opposition leader was of opinion that no practical good would come from a renewal of the discussion. Mr. Disraeli firmly assumed the responsibility of advising Her Majesty to issue the proclamation. On the following day, accordingly, that document was published in the Gazette, and on Monday, May 1st, an official proclamation of her Majesty's assumption of the title of Empress of India was made in several public places in the Kingdom. The document has been severely criticised, and has provoked further agitation in Parliament and the Press. Public meetings were held.

On the 10th May, Mr. Norwood's bill, proposing to deal with the practice of barristers accepting retaining fees in cases in which they fail to appear, was rejected by 107 majority.

The final battle took place in the Commons on the Government breach of faith in the new restriction of the title of Empress of India. After a heated debate, the motion was lost. The Government majority was 105.

The British Government has finally decided not to surrender Winslow to the United States authorities, because they refuse to give an assurance that he shall not be tried for other uncommitted offences in America, consequently the United States Government have given notice of the abrogation of the Extradition Treaty.

The King of Dahomey having definitely refused to pay the fine imposed upon him, the court will be forthwith blockaded.

A remarkable charge of conspiracy to murder the immigrant ship Strathmore, wrecked on Crozet Island last July, is now in progress at Greenwich.

After quitting Gibraltar, the Prince of Wales, accompanied by the Duke of Connaught, disembarked at Cadiz on 20th April, where a public welcome had been prepared by the authorities. Without tarrying here, the Prince took train, and arrived in the evening at Seville, where three officers from the King of Spain met him, and renewed an invitation to Madrid. Several days were agreeably spent in Seville visiting the Moorish cathedrals and other monuments of the city. On Friday the Prince attended the races, gave a banquet to the authorities and notabilities in the evening, and afterwards was present at a ball; the Gitanos were hurriedly inspected. On Monday, 24th, the Royal party left by special evening train, and, arriving at the capital on Tuesday forenoon, the Prince was received at the railway station by King Alfonso, his Ministers, and Chamberlains, and also the members of the British Legation. After luncheon at the palace, the King took his guest for a drive through the city. On Wednesday there was a review of troops in Madrid lasting three hours. The bull fight, which formed part of the programme for the entertainment and honour of the Prince, was omitted in deference to his wishes as president of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. On the 26th a grand banquet was given, followed by a reception, at which 1000 persons of distinction were present. On the 27th, Toledo and its arms factory were visited, and in the evening the Prince was present at a gala representation of Verdi's "Aida," and afterwards at a grand ball. On the 28th, the King and Prince went to the Escorial, and were at Mr. Layard's reception. In the evening the Duke of Connaught took his departure for England, and the Prince left, on the 30th by special train for Lisbon. That city was reached on the afternoon of May 1st, and the Prince was welcomed by King Louis and a brilliant assemblage of distinguished personages. A enthusiastic crowd thronged the streets, and at night the city was illuminated, the Prince dining with the Royal family. During the six days of his stay a splendid series of entertainments were provided. Three military orders were conferred upon the Prince; and no foreign visitor ever had so hearty a popular welcome. Leaving Lisbon on the 7th May the Prince arrived on the 11th at Portsmouth. In the evening there were special performances at the Royal Italian Opera, at which the Prince and Princess of Wales were present.

The civic welcome by the city of London is fixed for the 10th May, when there will be a reception banquet and a ball.

THE FOUNDER OF DIALECT GI'RMAN COMEDY,
Mr. T. K. EMMET.

Friend: Hello, Peter, who is in the family?
Peter: I'm well, thank you.

Friend: What's the matter with Lizzie?
Peter: She's gone to bed at night.

Friend: Is it possible?
Peter: Yes; she went to bed in "Fritz," un-naught so much she got to do, excepting cough, and dotted it.

MOTHER: My Child, you seem happier than usual this morning. What has given you such excellent spirits?

Daughter: Oh, Mother! I went to see ENMET last night, and—oh, that "Lullaby," it seems to be floating in the air and all around me.

So says the prettiest little girl in all Australia.

WHO WANTS SOME MILAKEE, cried Fritz?
How Shome, HIG W IS DE POODLES, cried
the Milkwoman.

WHO TROWED DE PUCKET OF WATER, cried
the Bologna Sausage Boy?
DOT'S HUR UP IN DE WINDER, cried
the Boy.

Who feels troubled at night from daily disappointments?
Who has the gout?
Who's troubled with indigestion?
Who wants the above comp'ns last cured?

Go, see ENMET, and have a laugh.
NOTHING BETTER TO DRIVE AWAY DULL CARE.
